CONTENT AND OPERATION

Background: when a mayor's court may be established

Mayor's courts are courts authorized by statute but are not courts of record. The General Assembly's authority to create and abolish mayor's courts is conferred by the Ohio Constitution.¹ Generally, a municipal corporation that has a population of more than 200 may establish a mayor's court. However, there are exceptions, including that a municipal corporation that is the site of a municipal court may not establish a mayor's court.² The mayor in a municipal corporation authorized to establish a mayor's court is not required to exercise the mayor's jurisdiction by establishing a mayor's court.³

Jurisdiction over traffic-related municipal ordinances

The bill specifies that a municipal or county court has exclusive jurisdiction over the violation of a traffic-related municipal ordinance committed within the court's territory unless the mayor's court of the municipal corporation has jurisdiction over the violation. If a mayor's court has jurisdiction over the violation, that jurisdiction is concurrently held by the municipal or county court and the mayor's court of the municipality. Therefore, if Ohio law does not authorize a municipal corporation to establish a mayor's court, a violation of a traffic-related ordinance is exclusively within the jurisdiction of the municipal or county court.⁴

Jurisdiction over civil traffic camera violations

The bill clarifies that civil violations based on evidence recorded by a traffic camera for which a ticket is issued by a county, township, or municipal corporation under the civil violation ticketing process are not under the original jurisdiction of a county court.⁵ Under continuing law, a municipal court also does not have original jurisdiction.⁶ Rather, initial challenges to such civil violations are heard in an administrative hearing by an officer appointed by a county, township, or municipal corporation. Municipal and county courts have jurisdiction over an appeal of a decision rendered by an administrative hearing officer under that process.⁷

Penalty for a traffic violation imposed by a municipal corporation

Under current law, a municipal or county court is required to establish a schedule of fines and costs for traffic violations.⁸ The bill prohibits a municipal corporation that is not authorized to establish a mayor's court from doing either of the following:

² See R.C. 1905.01 for all exceptions. See R.C. 1901.01(A) for a list of municipal corporations that are the site of a municipal court.

³ State ex rel Boston Heights vs. Petsche, 27 Ohio App.3d 106 (Summit 1985).

⁴ R.C. 1905.01, not in the bill, and 1901.20 and 1907.02.

⁵ R.C. 4511.093(B)(3), not in the bill, and 1907.02(D).

⁶ R.C. 1901.20(A)(1). The bill makes this division (A)(2)(b), but the law is unchanged.

⁷ R.C. 4511.099(A) and (G), not in the bill, and 1907.02(C).

⁸ Ohio Traffic Rule 13 as adopted by the Ohio Supreme Court.

(1) Imposing a fine, fee, or other charge that is in excess of the schedule of fines and costs for state violations established by the municipal or county court having territorial jurisdiction over the location of the violation; and

(2) Charging a fine, fee, or other charge for a traffic violation or infraction that is not included in the schedule of fines for state violations established by the municipal or county court having territorial jurisdiction over the location of the violation.

The bill does not restrict municipalities authorized to establish mayor's courts in the same manner (see COMMENT, below).⁹

COMMENT

Insofar as the bill directly regulates municipal activity, it may be subject to challenge under the home rule provision of the Ohio Constitution. Under home rule authority, municipalities have authority to exercise all powers of local self-government and to adopt and enforce within their limits such local police, sanitary, and other similar regulations as are not in conflict with general laws. The regulation of traffic is an exercise of municipal police power¹⁰ and is valid so long as it does not conflict with a general law.¹¹ By prohibiting activities of municipal corporations, the bill may be found to only limit the legislative power of a municipality rather than set forth a police regulation.

Generally, a municipal ordinance is in conflict with a general law if the ordinance permits or licenses what a statute forbids or prohibits, or vice versa.¹² The Ohio Supreme Court has held, in the context of criminal penalties, that a municipal ordinance

¹¹ A general law is a statute that: (1) is part of a statewide and comprehensive legislative enactment, (2) applies to all parts of the state alike and operates uniformly throughout the state, (3) sets forth police, sanitary, or similar regulations, rather than purports only to grant or limit the legislative power of a municipal corporation to set forth police, sanitary, or similar regulations, and (4) prescribes a rule of conduct upon citizens generally. *Canton v. is not in conflict with a general law on the same subject only because the municipal ordinance imposes a greater penalty than state law.¹³
