

Hi,

Our son attends Bishop Fenwick High School and we currently reside in Middletown city school district in Butler County.

Although I have personally attended Middletown High School several decades ago, as an Asian American minority, I honestly believe the quality of education and amount of bullying that exists in our public school district is not something I want my son to experience daily basis.

The tuition at private school is extremely high burden on our finance and we are forced to get some assistance from family member. We own a home in our school district for over 16 years and pay our part of property taxes and city income tax. However, our son has never been enrolled in public school. I believe we should have choice to send our kids to the school that is most beneficial educationally, socially, and religiously fits our needs.

The Edchoice voucher would immensely help offset our burden and will provide a choice that we believe is best for our child. If you had a chance to dramatically improve your child's future, what would you choose? Even if there's 1 single thread of difference between the two, wouldn't you want what's best for your child as well?

Sincerely,

In Hwang
