The Correlates of Low Homicide Rates among Unrelated Adults

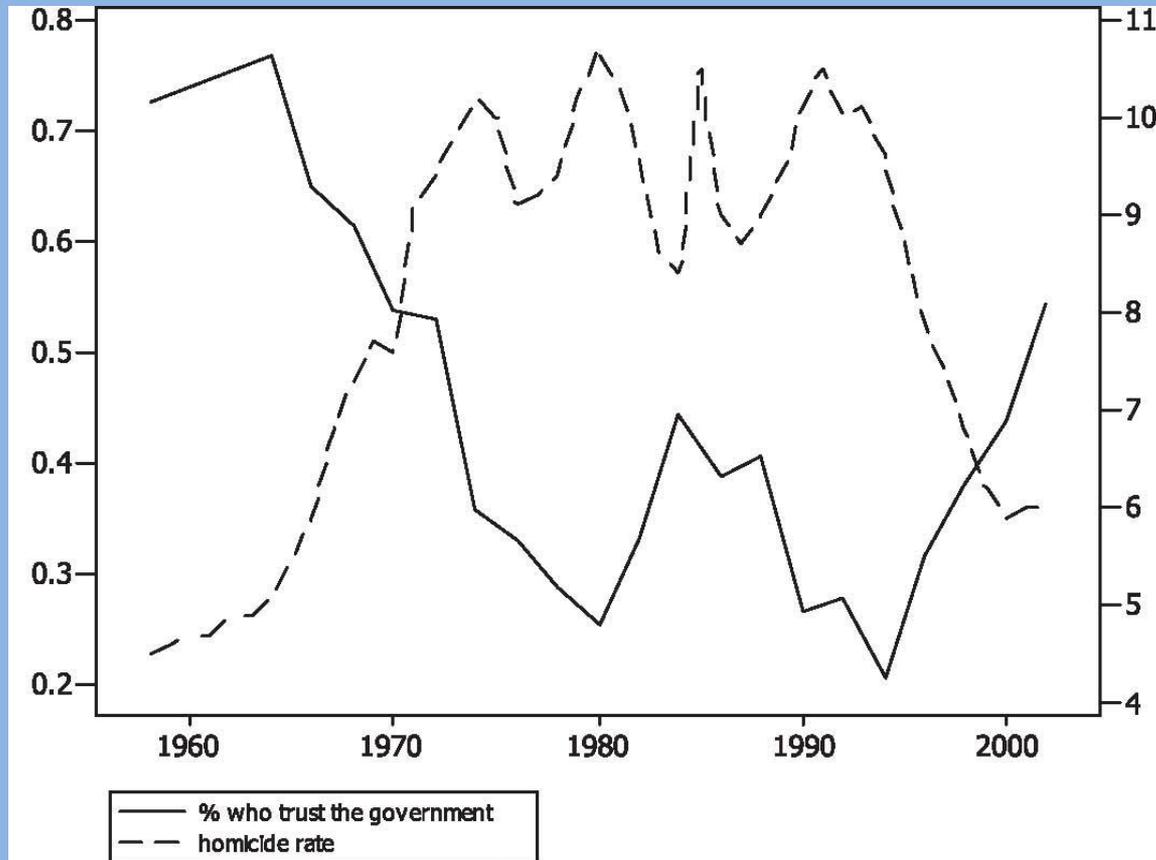

Political stability: The belief that government is stable and that its legal and judicial institutions are unbiased and will redress wrongs and protect lives and property.

A legitimate government: A feeling of confidence in government and the officials who run it, and a belief in their legitimacy.

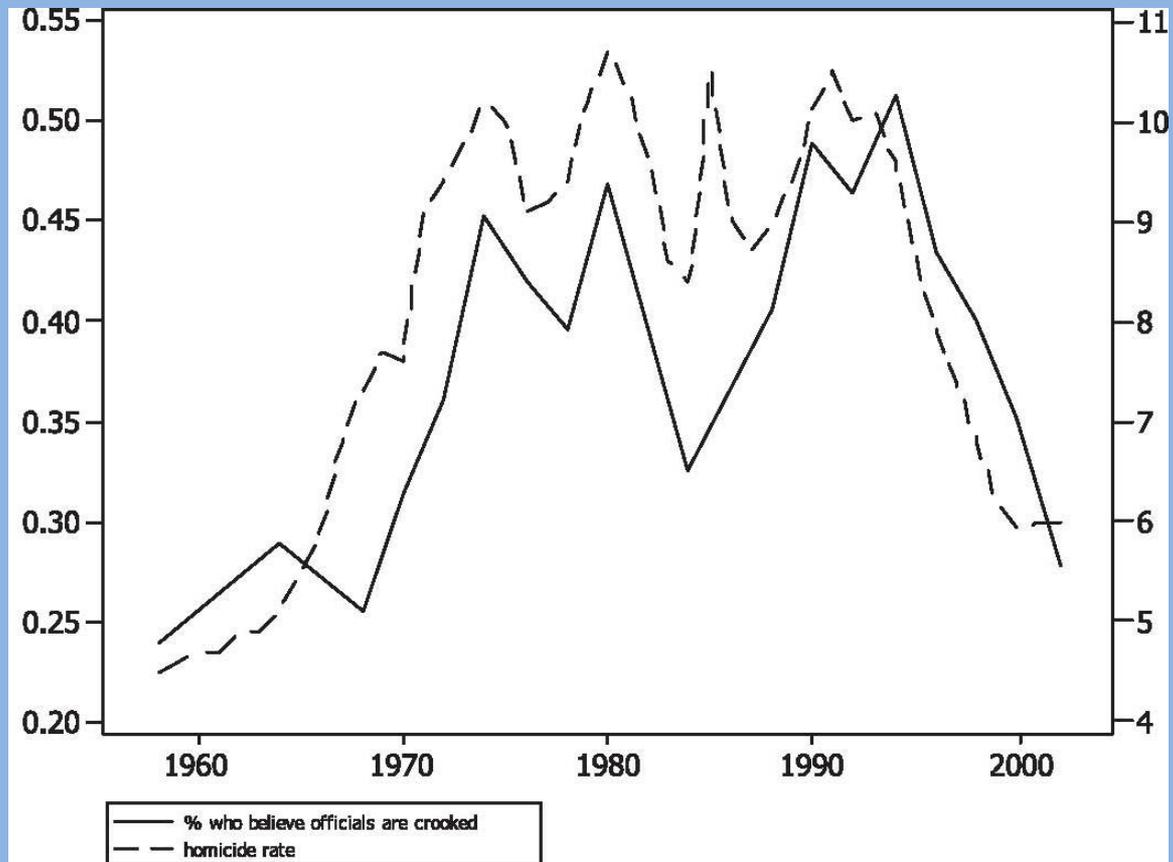

Fellow feeling, empathy: A feeling of patriotism, empathy, and kinship with other members of society arising from racial, religious, or political solidarity.

A legitimate status hierarchy: The belief that the social hierarchy is legitimate, that one's position in society is or can be satisfactory and that one can command the respect of others without resorting to violence.

Note: These are the elements of successful nation building.
