

Levi Carr

Hi, my name is Levi Carr and I'm 23 years old. Regardless of this Bill gets passed, I am going to protest Fossil fuel plants. They put tremendous portions of the population in Ohio at high risk of a myriad of diseases including asthma and lung cancer and worse than that, they don't give the future generations a fighting chance. If I have to ruin my future to make sure that the next generations have a future, that's fine by me. But I hope you know that intimidation tactics like this will work on most people and that future generations of Americans are relying on you to make the right decisions.

If fear tactics are what it takes, do you really think it's the right decision? And if it can be accomplished without employing fear tactics then why employ them?

Please don't make me ruin my future by winding up with several felonies for simply peacefully protesting.
