Chairman Eklund, Vice Chair Manning, Ranking Member Thomas, and Members of the Committee:

As the statewide government advocacy, public affairs, and community relations voice of Ohio’s eight Jewish federations, Ohio Jewish Communities submits this testimony today in support of SB 175, to “Grant civil immunity-injury, death, loss from carrying handguns.”

We are grateful to both Senator Schaffer and to you, Mr. Chairman, for sponsoring.

Background and Statement of Interest

Hate-filled, violent attacks on houses of worship and on schools have surged in the last few years. In just the last year alone, deadly attacks struck synagogues in Pittsburgh, PA1 and Poway, CA2, mosques in Christchurch, New Zealand3, and Christians at Easter services in Sri Lanka4, while stoking fear at African American churches in Louisiana5. As well, there have been two arrests in Ohio alone of homegrown violent extremists who were plotting attacks on Jewish communities in Toledo6 and Youngstown,7 and two recent convictions in anti-Semitic hate crimes in Cincinnati8 and Cleveland9. November began with the arrest by the FBI of a Holocaust-approving white supremacist plotting to bomb Colorado’s second oldest synagogue10 and with a guilty plea by two Iranian spies11 who admitted to plotting against Israeli and Jewish targets here in the Midwest12.

Nonprofits, perhaps especially so those in the faith-based community, are quintessential “soft targets.” Recently, in Columbus, Senator Rob Portman and the Department of Homeland Security along with Governor Mike DeWine and Ohio Public Safety hosted an interfaith summit for leaders of those groups specifically13.

Our Communal Interest

Since the Pittsburgh terror attack, the ADL counts at least 15 attempted radical attacks against the Jewish community that were foiled by law enforcement14, with at least two of those attempts – far higher than the law of averages would dictate - right here in Ohio15. These are the plots that have been made public by law and in other faith-based or cause-related activity in Ohio, including at universities, while left wing extremists continue anti-Israel activity on college campuses as well\(^{20}\). Recent white nationalist activity on campuses in Ohio include both the private (Ohio Wesleyan\(^{21}\) and University of Dayton\(^{22}\) and the public (The Ohio State University and Miami University)\(^{23}\). White supremacist propaganda also showed up in heavily Jewish Bexley, a Columbus suburb\(^{24}\). And, the Maltz Museum of Jewish Heritage in Cleveland was tagged with a Holocaust denial poster\(^{25}\) not even three years after a swastika was spray painted at Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati\(^{26}\), North America’s largest Jewish studies seminary.

And, we have seen a worrying number of potential surveillance and attempted entries into synagogues and Jewish agencies here in Ohio. Police indicate the accused Toledo plotter, a homegrown violent extremist who affiliated with ISIS\(^{27}\) and radical Islam, had even done pre-operational surveillance at the Jewish community campus.

As well, Ohio has been the site of several other recent ISIS linked arrests and convictions in Akron\(^{28}\), Columbus\(^{29}\), Dayton\(^{30}\), and Southwest Ohio.

Prior Efforts by the State

None of this is news either to this committee or the full Senate. You are aware of the dangers facing nonprofit institutions such as schools, community centers, senior living facilities, and houses of worship in our community and in other faith-based or cause-focused communities like ours.
That is why the General Assembly in partnership with both the current and prior administration have taken steps to combat threats and to help secure our physical campuses and protect those who study, work, and worship in them.

A Gap in the Protection

The legislation before you is a needed and necessary next step in this three way partnership between you as state policymakers, our communities, and local law enforcement. It is a modest change to state law that does one thing: it amends nonprofit organizations seeking insurance coverage into the same category as local governments, colleges and universities, and even private sector businesses. Nonprofits, seemingly, are the only type of organization treated differently in the law.

This makes it harder for nonprofit organizations, already the target of deadly plots, to take their own measures to protect themselves. If a special-duty officer or armed security guard makes insurance unaffordable, the choice is an untenable one.

By way of example, in at least one of our communities, as they sought to deploy trained and licensed guards to deter and defend against attack, their insurance premium rose while their coverage decreased.

In our conversations with similar communities nationally, we have learned this is not a universal problem. State action can help here, as it has elsewhere.

Favorable Action Requested

Making this small change in the law will allow communities at real and immediate risk of terror attack to do everything they need to protect themselves. That saves lives.

It will also help local police and emergency responders, already stretched thin at times.

We do believe the legislation would be strengthened by a further specific detail of certain classes of employees, officers, or licensees who would be included in this civil immunity. We would encourage this committee and the General Assembly to explore that further. However, in the interests of moving this legislation as quickly as practical, we support the sponsor’s amendment that simplifies the language to put nonprofits seeking insurance on par with anyone else and urge the committee to favorably report this bill out to the floor.

We welcome any questions as well as the opportunity to work with you to enact this critical missing piece to community safety.

Thank you.
