Local Impact Statement Procedure Required: Yes

Highlights

- The bill establishes a five-month “amnesty” period in FY 2021 during which taxpayers owing past-due state taxes and certain fees may pay their taxes or fees and would not have to pay penalties and accrued interest normally due. The amnesty applies only to taxes and fees that were due and payable as of the bill’s effective date and that were unreported or underreported.
- The bill will reduce revenue streams from penalties and fees that would have been otherwise collected during FY 2021. However, the bill may also accelerate the timing of tax collections that would have been potentially collected at a later date (and in that case would decrease revenue from those taxes and fees in subsequent fiscal years). The magnitude of revenue gains and losses from penalties and fees in FY 2021 are undetermined, but the likely result is a net gain amounting to millions of dollars.
- To the extent tax revenue is pulled forward into FY 2021, there would be revenue losses in FY 2022 and subsequent fiscal years. Those losses would likely amount to somewhat less than the FY 2021 revenue gain on the assumption that some tax liabilities might have avoided detection indefinitely.
- For FY 2021, for state taxes accruing to the GRF, revenue gains or losses would be shared by the GRF (96.62%), the Local Government Fund (LGF, 1.68%), and the Public Library Fund (PLF, 1.70%). Funds deposited into the LGF and PLF are distributed to counties, municipalities, townships, and public libraries according to statutory formulas and decisions by county budget commissions.
- Non-GRF funds would also experience revenue gains and losses in FY 2021, but the net result is more ambiguous, due to the smaller number of taxpayers that the Department of Taxation generally monitors under the taxes that generate revenue to those funds.

Detailed Analysis

The bill establishes a temporary, five-month tax “amnesty” from August 1 to December 31, 2020, with respect to delinquent state taxes. It also covers delinquent state income tax withholding remittances by employers and certain fees administered by the Department of Taxation. The amnesty applies only to taxes that were due and payable as of the bill’s effective date and that were unreported or underreported. The amnesty does not apply to any tax for which a notice of assessment or audit has been issued, for which a bill has been issued, or for which an audit has been conducted or is pending.¹ If, during the amnesty, a person pays the full amount of delinquent taxes or fees owed, the Tax Commissioner must waive all penalties and accrued interest that are normally charged. The bill authorizes the Commissioner to require a person to file returns or reports, including amended returns or reports. In addition to receiving a waiver of penalties and accrued interest, a person who pays the amount due is immune from criminal prosecution or any civil action with respect to the tax or fee paid, and no assessment may be issued against the person for that tax or fee. Local taxes, including school district income taxes and county and transit authority sales and use taxes, are not covered by the amnesty. The most recent general tax amnesty was conducted from January 1 through February 15 in 2018.

The amnesty program would start after income taxes were extended with the enactment of H.B. 197 of the 133rd General Assembly. In response to that act, the Tax Commissioner authorized an extension of the deadline to file state income taxes until July 15, matching the extended deadline for federal returns. The extended deadline applied also to school district income taxes, certain returns and payments filed by pass-through entities, and municipal net profit taxes if they are administered by the Department of Taxation. Filing deadlines for other taxes were not extended.

Taxes covered by the amnesty

The GRF taxes covered under the amnesty program are the following: income tax; commercial activity tax (85% is deposited in the GRF);² state sales and use taxes; financial institutions tax; public utility excise tax; kilowatt-hour tax; natural gas consumption tax;

² Under continuing law, commercial activity tax receipts are deposited into the GRF (85.0%), the School District Tangible Property Tax Replacement Fund (Fund 7047, 13.0%), and the Local Government Tangible Property Tax Replacement Fund (Fund 7081, 2.0%). The distributions to funds 7047 and 7081 are used to make reimbursement payments to school districts and other local taxing units, respectively, for the phase out of property taxes on general business tangible personal property.

insurance premiums taxes; cigarette, tobacco, and vaping excise taxes; alcoholic beverage tax; liquor gallonage tax; and some revenue from the petroleum activity tax.³

Certain taxes and fees are not credited to the GRF due to provisions of the Revised Code or restrictions imposed by the Ohio Constitution. The following taxes covered by the amnesty are credited to other funds and not the GRF: motor fuel excise tax, fuel use tax, casino wagering tax, severance taxes, wireless 9-1-1 charges, tire fees, and horse racing taxes.⁴

Fiscal effect

When taxes are not paid by their due date, penalties and fees are imposed, and those increase with the length of the delinquency and nonpayment. The COVID-19 pandemic situation has created substantial employment losses and severe economic dislocation for both individuals and businesses, and this will result in an increase in tax delinquencies. The bill abates penalties and fees during the amnesty period, and thus will directly reduce revenue from such sources by an uncertain amount in FY 2021.

However, an amnesty program may also push a number of taxpayers, if they are able, to accelerate the payment schedule of their tax debt, especially in instances where penalties and fees have grown disproportionately, relative to the original tax liability. Therefore, an amnesty program accelerates the timing of tax collections as taxpayers seek to reduce their total tax burden, though the increase in collections from the bill in FY 2021 is undetermined.⁵ The acceleration of the payment of taxes and fees would also decrease revenue from those taxes and fees in subsequent fiscal years, when in many cases the tax liabilities would have been identified by the Department of Taxation.

As of this writing, estimates of unreported or underreported tax liabilities are not available to LBO economists. The magnitudes likely depend on the number of taxpayers that the Department of Taxation must monitor. For example, it is likely easier for the Department to identify unreported or underreported tax liabilities for the kilowatt-hour tax or motor fuel tax, for which taxpayers number in the hundreds, than such tax liabilities for the personal income tax, for which taxpayers number in the millions. Similarly, the Department of Insurance, which enforces the domestic and foreign insurance taxes, has to monitor the compliance of hundreds of taxpayers in a regulated environment, which suggests that magnitudes of unreported or underreported tax liabilities are likely not too great.

Under the bill, taxes and fees collected under the amnesty are to be distributed in the same manner as the underlying tax liability would have been distributed had it been paid as required by law, meaning non-GRF taxes and fees would continue to accrue to non-GRF funds.

For FY 2021, for state taxes accruing to the GRF, revenue gains or losses generally would be shared by the GRF (96.62%), the Local Government Fund (LGF, 1.68%), and the Public Library Fund (PLF, 1.70%).⁶ LBO does not have an estimate of the amounts involved, but gains totaling more than $10 million from the bill cannot be ruled out.

Non-GRF funds would also experience revenue gains and losses in FY 2021, but the net result is more ambiguous, due to the smaller number of taxpayers that the Department of Taxation generally monitors under the taxes that generate revenue to those funds.

⁶ Any receipts that would have been collected in subsequent fiscal years would be allocated differently under current law: the allocations of GRF tax revenue to each of the LGF and PLF would amount to 1.66%, their shares under codified law, starting in July 2021.
