

To Whom It May Concern:

My brothers have lived at Boyd's Home since it was opened in 1971. Our parents are both deceased, and Boyd's have been part of the family ever since. The care they are given is exemplary, they are treated as family, and feel very close to the staff and other residents. They are safe and in a secure environment with programs designed specifically for their needs as well as a workshop that gives them paid employment that they can handle. They have very active social lives. All this is done in a very cost-effective manner by an incredibly dedicated staff. I have witnessed all of these components over the years and am repeatedly impressed with this very high quality HOME. Boyd's is not an institution! I am a retired educator and I know the differences very well.

Sincerely,
Nancy Derby
