

My name is Rob Weidenfeld and I am a resident of Loveland, Ohio. I recently became an active member of the nationwide Move To Amend organization. For over 40 years I have involved myself in groups that seek to remove the corrupting influence of massive contributions to our politicians. Whether the money came from corporations, labor unions, individuals or anyplace else, I have long believed that this dark money benefits the special interest donating their largess, but not the community as a whole, or in particular the average citizen. I do not believe that money should be equated with free speech. I believe that the best start we can make would be to undo Citizens United. I have no animus towards corporations nor even those who are able to have at their disposal massive amounts of money. I am a capitalist who believes that the system we have in place is inadequate. Correcting this problem will make all of our citizens equal stakeholders in the democratic process, which I would like to believe is what our Founding Fathers intended.
