

I have family and friends who are teachers and unequivocally do not want to carry weapons or work in a school building with other teachers who do. Even highly trained police officers have limited accuracy when engaged with an active shooter. As a parent who is about to send my first child to kindergarten, I can't fathom a situation in which adding a gun to the equation of classroom management would increase anyone's safety. This bill does not begin to address the real threats of school shootings, including the abundant access to high-capacity magazines and assault rifles.
