

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources has shown that there is radioactivity in commercialized brine that is already on the market. As a professional engineer, I know of no process that successfully removes radioactive particles from brine from oil and gas wells. Therefore, brine should not be a commodity.