

I am against SB 52 for several reasons:

-It puts up needless barriers to new markets with the potential to create great prosperity.

-Restricting the supply of energy when more cost-effective options are available robs both consumers and businesses through unnecessarily high energy bills.

-It politicizes important infrastructure reform in a way that potentially hinders future, equally critical projects.

-It retroactively destroys projects that already invested time and money in good faith.

Thank you,
Sam Kane
