

Thomas Curtin:

My friend's mother is a resident of a nursing home. Day after day after night after night, my friend receives calls from her mom about needing help and nobody answering her call light. The woman has sat in urine and feces for hours. There have been times when she did not receive her meals. Her mom has complained of employees hurting her on purpose when changing her. Her mother is cognitive but unable to physically do things on her own. When complaints are made, my friend is always told "we have to investigate" with never any outcome. A camera in her mom's room would make the "investigation" easy and hold employees responsible for the neglect and abuse her mother suffers.
