The Cincinnati Reds and Reds Hall of Fame and Museum welcome and applaud any and all illustrious honors that can be bestowed on our alumni.

On the field, Pete Rose's impact on and contributions to America's National Pastime over the course of his 24-year playing career, are indisputable and cannot be overstated. Embodied by his "Charlie Hustle" nickname, Rose played the game with an exuberance and passion that thrilled millions of fans and inspired untold numbers of young players to play the game with grit, determination, and competitive zeal.

And as witnessed on November 10, 2024, when thousands of people came to Great American Ball Park to pay respects to him nearly four decades after he played his last game, his legacy continues to resonate powerfully across generations.

The imprint Pete Rose left on the game is indelible. The records he set and, more importantly, the memories he created, will endure as long as the game is played.
