Supporting the DD Workforce

My mother was DD I helped teach her how to read and write as I was growing up I am now A DSP and have been taking care of other DDs for the last 6 years It is challenging work it is hard work but it is what my calling is and others who work with DD do not get the appreciation that we deserve We work hard hours long Hours and deal with a lot and these fast food restaurants pay their employees better than we get paid And it's not fair we're overworked and underpaid
