WHEREAS, Designated by President Lyndon Johnson in 1964, American Heart Month provides an annual time for individuals and organizations to remember those lost to this disease, to raise awareness of warning signs, and to formulate plans and policies to help meet the challenges of the future. Heart disease is an endemic condition that afflicts countless Americans, and with many Ohioans not having the necessary information and tools needed to live heart-healthy lives, we hope that this observation inspires change; and 4

WHEREAS, Heart disease is a serious medical issue that is the leading cause of death for men and women, regardless of ethnicity and race, and it results in the death of hundreds of thousands of people in the United States each year. In addition, multiple factors, including obesity, physical activity, stress, sleep, and genetics, can contribute to its development, and identifying early warning signs can be key to survival; and 12

WHEREAS, We can be proud of the medical advancements for treating cardiovascular diseases as well as of greater awareness about its threat, and it is through such efforts as American Heart Month in Ohio and National Wear Red Day that we can improve those odds even further. Indeed, the many professionals and local advocacy groups that have dedicated themselves to promoting educational initiatives are certainly deserving of high praise; therefore be it 19
