

Bob,

It was a pleasure talking with you yesterday about the possibility of delivering a non-partisan, non-advocative webinar to public policymakers on Surety Bonds.

Per your request, I attach a document that provides information on The Institutes Griffith Insurance Education Foundation.

In addition, below please find a brief description of the program we would be pleased to deliver via webinar:

Surety Bonds: A Primer for Public Policymakers

The Institutes Griffith Insurance Education Foundation is eager to deliver a 60 minute webinar, providing an overview of the fundamentals of surety bonds. Our leading academic presenter will consider the role of surety bonds in risk management and compare and contrast them with insurance. Discussion will include an examination of how surety bonds: help to protect taxpayers; foster innovation; serve as business tools. The session will include time for Q & A.

I look forward to resuming our conversation next week.

As we discussed, this topic may be beneficial to a broad audience of policymakers (in addition to Insurance Committee members, the topic is certainly relevant to those serving on Agriculture and Transportation Committees, too).

Best,

Frank Paul Tomasello | Senior Director, The Institutes Griffith Foundation
