DETAILED ANALYSIS

Policy to accommodate sincerely held religious beliefs

The bill requires each state institution of higher education to adopt a policy that reasonably accommodates the sincerely held religious beliefs and practice of students regarding exams, other academic requirements, and absences for reasons of faith or conscience.¹

Absences and alternative accommodations

An institution’s policy must permit a student to be absent for up to three days each academic year to take holidays for reasons of faith or conscience or to participate in organized activities conducted under the auspices of a religious denomination, church, or other religious organization. The institution is prohibited from imposing an academic penalty as a result of a student’s absence under the policy.²

The policy also must require that students who miss exams and other academic requirements as a result of such absences be provided with alternative accommodations if:

² R.C. 3345.024(A).

1. The student's sincerely held religious belief or practice severely affects the student's ability to take an exam or meet an academic requirement; and
2. Within 14 days after the first day of instruction in a course, the student provides the instructor with written notice of the specific dates for which the student requests alternative accommodations.³

Instructor responsibilities

Under the bill, an instructor must accept without question the sincerity of a student's religious belief and keep requests for alternative accommodations confidential. An instructor also must schedule a time and date for an alternative exam, which may be before or after the time and date the exam or other academic requirement was originally scheduled. The bill states that the instructor must schedule the alternative exam without prejudicial effect.⁴

In addition, the policy must require instructors to include in each course syllabus a statement regarding the state institution's policy. That statement must include a description of the general procedure for requesting accommodations and contact information for an individual whom a student may contact for more information about the policy.⁵

Requirement to post policy on website

An institution must post in a prominent location on its website:

1. A copy of the policy, including the contact information of an individual who can provide further information about it; and
2. A nonexhaustive list of major religious holidays or festivals for the next two academic years developed by the Chancellor of Higher Education. The Chancellor must provide each institution with that list at the beginning of each academic year.⁶

Grievance procedure

The bill requires an institution's policy to include a procedure under which a student may notify the institution of any grievance regarding the policy's implementation.⁷

³ R.C. 3345.024(B)(1).

⁴ R.C. 3345.024(B)(2).

⁵ R.C. 3345.024(D).

⁶ R.C. 3345.024(C).

⁷ R.C. 3345.024(E).
