

Dear Public Health Committee,

How many decisions did you make as a child or as a teen that you regretted? That embarrassing tattoo is one level, experimenting with drugs is another, but forever changing your body is a whole new level. How many are mature enough to make forever-life altering decisions they will not regret, at those ages?

They can't buy cigarettes, get married, or purchase a gun, but they are wise enough to tell a doctor, possibly with a profit motive, to forever change his or her body? These same kids may not even be able to get that regrettable tattoo.

Now imagine a teacher or counselor with an agenda. Can you think of any, from ignorant to foolish to even nefarious? Why are so many so aggressively promoting these forever-life changes? What is their motive?

Be wise. Be courageous. Protect our children. Please protect our children. Children. They are children. We are supposed to be the adults. Protect them.
